

California Senate Bill 1019 (For Internal Use Only)

Senate Bill (SB) 1019: Upholstered Furniture, Flame Retardant Chemicals Law

What is SB 1019?

Senate Bill 1019 is a new law that specifically applies to “covered products” such as upholstered or reupholstered furniture sold in California. The law mandates the seller of upholstery goods to indicate whether or not the product contains added Flame Retardant chemicals.

Why is this printing on our invoices and packing slips and appearing on our website and price list?

Under California law, it is the ultimate responsibility of the furniture manufacturer/workroom to ensure upholstered product is labeled whether or not the goods contain added Flame Retardant chemicals. If a product does contain added Flame Retardant chemicals, the State of California requires businesses doing business in the State of California to provide that information before potentially exposing Californians to the chemicals in the product.

This applies to a very few select patterns in our line. Please refer ALL questions pertaining to SB 1019 to Pindler’s Customer Service department.
